May 1, 2017, 4:47 PM UTC / Source: TODAYBy Erin Clements Friends (who ended 13 years ago this week!) made household names out of his six stars — but all the actors had credits on hit shows even during their pre-Central Limit days. Seeing the stars of 'Friends' in their earlier rolesMay 1, 201701:18 For that he was mild paleontologist Ross Geller. David Schwimmer could be seen romance Six on a very special episode of Blossom and Kevin Arnold's older sister, Karen, on The Wonder Years. And two years before he won over viewers as Rachel Green. Jennifer Aniston made an appearance on the time-travel sci-fi series Quantum Leap. Beverly Hills, 90210 fans remember Matthew Perry as troubled tennis star Roger Azarian on a Season 1 episode. And, of course, Courteney Cox already has a recurring role on the final two seasons of Family Ties as one of Alex P. Keaton's girlfriends, psychology student Lauren.Getty ImagesMat LeBlanc is no stranger to spinoffs (remember Joey?), and in 1991 he became a Married with Kids character who spun into the short-lived sitcom that subsequently spawned out a separate LeBlanc series, Vinnie and Bobby. And most Friends buffs know that Lisa Kudrow played ditzy waitress Ursula on Mad About You—the character was Phoebe Buffay's twin sister, after all, allowing for crossover between the two NBC sitcoms — but did you know Kudrow also appeared on Cheers? (Bloomberg) - The Donald Trump era power couple of Jeff Sprecher and Kelly Loeffler.First, the New York Stock Exchange, owned by Sprecher's Atlanta-based intercontinental Exchange Inc., flip-flopped — twice — about whether to deny several major Chinese companies, as the Trump administration has claimed. Then Loeffler, a former ICE executive, put her U.S. Senate seat in Georgia on Warnock lost, a defeat that - coupled with an expected win for Jon Ossoff - will hand Democrats control of the upper chamber. The double blow costs more than bruised egos. The couple gave $23.7 million on ill-fated campaign, according to the Center for Responsive Politics. Confusion over NYSE's move has driven down the share prices of three major Chinese telecom companies and at one point shaved a combined $12 billion off their value. Still, it wasn't all recent bad news for the pair: the Bloomberg Billionaires Index last week introduced Sprecher as the latest entry into the 10-figure club. Bond yields and interest rates are expected to remain at a historic low for a while, and the next way for investors to find revenue is the stock market. CNBC Mad Money host Jim Cramer Cramer Tuesday, With my diversified dividend portfolio, you can get a 5% plus return with the possibility of actual upside, Cramer said. According to the former hedge fund manager, it is still possible to get an income with good safety in the current environment. Cramer warned that investors should not rush high yield stocks as more than 8% dividend yield resembles a red flag. It tells you that there's a lot of risk, and if you invest for income, risk is the last thing you want, he added. Dividends are like rewards that companies pay for holding a stock. Fast-growing companies like Amazon.com (NASDAQ:AMZN) and Tesla Inc (NASDAQ:TSLA) are investing full profits back into the business for growth and expansion instead of a dividend payment, Cramer noted. He has compiled a diversified portfolio of nine high-yield dividend stocks that have a strong balance sheet. Dow Inc (NYSE: DOW): It yields 5.02%. Cramer thinks the stock is a good performer and is likely to go higher because of polyethylene's rising price. See what analysts think about DowIBM (NYSE: IBM): This yields 5.17%. Although Cramer called IBM a controversial choice, he thinks that IBM's Red Hat acquisition was smart, and the company focuses on fast-growing future opportunities. IBM also recently named former Trump adviser Gary Cohn as vice chairman. AbbVie Inc (NYSE: ABBV): This yields 4.88%. The company has a huge pipeline of drugs and two blockbuster drugs that grow like crazy, as per Cramer.&#amp;#p;#p; G Foods, Inc. (NYSE: BGS): It yields 7.11%. The company has a steady cash flow. According to Cramer, with more people cooking during the lockdown, B&#amp;#p;#p; G brand food is perfect for consumers. Chevron Corporation (NYSE: CVX): It yields 5.93%. They have a strong balance sheet and Cramer thinks the company will do well under the Biden administration as it will be difficult to acquire new wells, making the existing ones more valuable. Verizon Communications Inc. (NYSE: VZ): It yields 4.28%. Cramer called it a slow and steady producer. In the utility shares group, Cramer recommended American Electric Power Company Inc (NASDAQ:AEP) with 3.64% yield, Dominion Energy Inc (NYSE: D) with 3.45% yield, and Entergy Corporation (NYSE: ETR) with 3.93% yield. Financial markets gyrating on Wednesday because of two Georgia Senate races suggest Democratic control of the House, Senate and presidency. The said $2,000 payments could go out the door immediately. There is a strong feeling growth among investors - of relief - that the new year will feature lower volatility 2020. That together it would be enough to boost spirits, but even better, there is also a perception that the markets are going to drive higher in the new year. Marko Kolanovic, JPMorgan's renowned quant expert, sees the initial stages of a positive feedback loop, with lower volatility and systematic investment strategies coming together to drive profits, attracting more investors — and in Kolanovic's view the S&#amp;#p;#p; P 500 to 4,600 by the end of the year. This will be a 25% increase for the index. A common market environment like that is bound to produce many stock winners, and Wall Street's analysts are working to point them out. Among other things, they tap penny stock, shares priced at less than $5 per share. Their rock-bottom starting price makes pennies the logical place to look for big returns on investment. Although their risk factor is high, even a small gain in absolute numbers will turn into a massive percentage gain in share price. Using TipRanks' database, we identified two penny supplies that the benefits believed could see explosive gains in the coming months. Not to mention each getting a Strong Buy consensus rating from the analyst community.9 Meters Biopharma (NMTR)Some biopharma companies are taking a broad-based approach, while others focus on a niche. 9 Meters is one of the latter, aiming for unfulfilled needs for digestive patients. The company's development pipeline features drug candidates examined as treatments for short bowel syndrome (SBS) and celiac disease (CD), two conditions that are both dangerous and difficult to treat. Drilling down to pipeline details, 9 Meters' flagship product, Larazotide, is in Phase 3 development for the treatment of CD. CD affects about 1% of the population, but there are no approved therapies. Top-line data from the study are expected in the second half of 2021. Furthermore, this past December, the company announced that it had entered into an agreement with EBRIS, the European Biomedical Research Institute of Salerno, to investigate Larazotide as a potential treatment for respiratory complications due to COVID-19. The other major drug in the company's pipeline is NM-002, for SBS. The company recently announced positive Phase 1b/2a results, with a measurable impact on disease symptoms of a compound well tolerated by patients. NMTR's strong pipeline and $0.89 share price has achieved it considerable praise from the benefits on Wall Street. This is one of those NMTR bulls is Trust's Srikrupa Devarakonda. Citing Larazotide as a key component of its bullish thesis, the analyst noted, we acknowledge investors are likely to see a pivotal hearing in a tough-to-crack Celiac disease program as high risk despite encouraging Ph2b data. We model $705M/$353M in peak unsuitable/custom sales and see potential upside of 400% - positive Ph3 reading. Devarakonda also sees significant unfulfilled need in SBS and still believes that NM-002 has added profile against SOC. His main takeaways takeaways The recent Phase 1b/2a results include: 1) we believe that the drug has early activity in SBS patients; all 9 patients showed significant reduction in total stool output volume; average TSO reduction was 42% off baseline; 2) responses occur quickly, with effects on TSO seen within 48 hours of dosing; 3) safety profile looks favorable, we'd like to see greater durability. To this end, Devarakonda rates NMTR share a Buy along with a $5 price target. This figure conveys its confidence in NMTR's ability to increase 462% in the coming year. (To watch Devarakonda's record, click here.) Turning to the rest of the Street now, other analysts are on the same page. With 4 Buys and no Holds or Sale, the word on the street is that NMTR is a strong buy. Given its $4.33 average price target, upside of 366% could be in store for investors. (See NMTR stock analysis on TipRanks) Orchard Therapeutics (ORTX)Orchard Therapeutics takes the broad-based approach to the biopharma industry. The company is working on developing gene therapies for rare, often terminal, diseases, including neurometabolic disorders, primary immune deficiency and blood disorders. The gene therapy approach uses blood stem cells to deliver corrected genetic information directly into the patient's body. Orchard's pipeline demonstrates the diversity of disorders that are amenable to gene therapy - the company has no fewer than 12 drug candidates in development. Among these candidates, Libmeldy (OTL-200) stands out. Libmeldy is in commercialization stages as a treatment for MLD (metachromatic leukodystrophy), a rare, mutation-based genetic disorder of the nervous system. Libmeldy, who is designed to treat children suffering from the infantile form of MLD by replacing the defective ARSA gene, received his approval for medical use in the EU in December 2020. Webdush analyst David Nierengarten does not take on the European approval of Libmeldy, and its implication for Orchard's progress. He writes, We look forward to the company's commercial execution in the EU and an eventual 2022 approval in the U.S. ORTX received IND clearance from the FDA last month for the program paving the way for talks with U.S. regulators to decide a suitable path forward to a BLA filing. Net nets, with possibly two gene therapies approved in the next 12-18 months and a crucial study starting in a third (MPS-1), think our ORTX shares are undervalued at these levels, the analyst concluded. In keeping with his bullish comments, Nierengarten rates ORTX as Outperform (i.e. Buy), and its $15 price target suggests a potential for 241% growth in the year ahead. (To watch Nierengarten's record, click here) Do other analysts agree with Nierengarten? They do. Only Buy ratings, 3, in fact, are in the last three months. Therefore, ORTX gets a strong buying consensus rating. At $15, the average price target indicates that shares can value by 241% in the year ahead.
